INDUSTRY IN THIS COUNTY HAS BEEN SOLD FOR BIG PRICE--TRANSFER MADE

The Martin-Rockwell company of New York, the controlling force in the Martin Arms company, the Standard Roller Bearing company and the Maye Radiator company, has purchased the Braeburn Steel plant at Braeburn on the Allegheny river, this county. This is one of the biggest real estate deals in Westmoreland county in many months. Consideration for the steel plant is $1,000,000. The purchasing company will use the plant to manufacture exclusively high grade tool and electric steel for the government arms and bearings for motor vehicles. A new additional six-ton steel furnace and a new mill to double the present producing capacity of the plant will be created by the new company.

The plant was built by the late William Metcalf of Pittsburgh 20 years ago. It was originally capitalized at $100,000, al preferred stock practically all of which was held by the Metcalf family. William Metcalf, Jr., was president of the company The new officers are: A J. Rockwell, president; G. H. Weilsen, vice president, and the active operating head, and J. R. Bell, treasurer

MAN GETS LESSON ON ART OF STORE CLOSING

Down in Braddock, Pa., they use red paint instead of tar for the fellows who disobey the fuel administrators closing order. Wednesday evening a crowd of enraged merchants called at the store of Louis Wilmer, and upon their failure to find the proprietor, who had made his escape the rear way when he saw the crowd coming, they proceeded to paint his store blood red. The paint was to be used to smear Wilmer. He reappeared while the crowd was painting his front and threw buckets of water from the store among the visitors. The excitement was running at fever heat when the police appeared and told Wilmer that he must obey the fuel order hereafter.

Monessen has been resorting to the tar and the 1,000 brigade seems to have conquered the situation locally pretty well. But there may be an occasional fellow who will insist on burning the midnight oil in order to keep his business going and if his business has so far withered as to require midnight oil to keep it alive, he might as well change his tactics and help win the war. And we'll wager that such a fellow is not a steady adveriser.

Jury Finds Man Took His Own Life

At a meeting of the Fayette county coroner's jury, it was decided that Mike Varowick, of Valley City, O., had committed suicide. His body was found near West Newton. His throat was cut and it was thought that he had been murdered at first, investigations proved that he had committed suicide to escape the draft. He was 30 years of age.

The jury decided that Joe Villigich lost his life by jumping off the Whitney bridge, no blame being placed on the West Penn Railways company.

Andrew Metz of Wyano lost his life by being electrocuted while meding with the wires of the West Penn Power company. He was attempting to recharge the batteries of his motorcycle from a high power wire.

The jury decided that no blame should be placed upon Merlan Coleman who was driving the state highway truck which killed George Hoebling The accident was caused by the boy's bicycle being upset in front of the truck by a dog

Don't Shoot Pigeons

The United States Department of Agriculture urges hunters not to shoot pigeons in the air, for they may be homing pigeons being trained in many sections by the Signal Corps of the United States army to carry messages across battle fields. Farmers and other breeders who allow their birds a few hours of liberty each day are also liable to loss from shooting.

OTTERBEIN BRO THERHOOD MEETING

(Contributed.)

Everybody enjoyed a good laugh on Tuesday night when the Otterbein Brotherhood rendered its monthly program in the United Brethren church. Promptly at 8 o'clock President William Calloway announced the first number, and from that time to the close of the services, everybody just had to laugh. Faces that have not cracked a smile since "Heck was a pup," were actually convulsed First, they laughed at the quartet, and, well, it was no wonder that they did. Why a barnyard chorus was zero as compared to their warbling.

Vice President J. C. Lukens opened the ball by scrapping with his wife in a reading he gave. As usual in these cases, the good wife came off victorious, and J. C. was glad to say "Our new Sunday Breeches."

At this juncture Mr. Dobson was announced and rendered a very effective solo. On encore he again sang to the delight of all. President Callaway gave the whole show equilibrium at this point by reading a very good paper on the flag. Rev. Wilson Reid at this time and in a very generous way spoke of his appreciation of the occasion and proceeded to double up the audience up like "jack knives." He was at his best and with a wealth of funny anecdotes gathered from the "four quarters of the earth" kept the crowd laughing from the "sound of the gong" to the finish in the sixty-third round. He finally took his seat in a din of applause.

The orator of the evening, Mr. William H. Crowe, was then introduced, and talk about that "Tom Pepper," person, why he was left fifty degrees in the shade of the dim past. Mr. Crowe's subject was "Beating the Kaiser," and in the opinion of those present, he did it If a copy of that speech could be printed in the "Zetung Tagblat" of Berlin, that old King Prussian of a sauer kraut eater would die of green envy. O, it was a hum dinger of a speech, but it is altogether likely that Crowe will have trouble before he will ever succeed in getting anybody to believe him again.

Attorney Daniel Reamer, the critic of the occasion, was then called to the front and spoke in his (usual) solemn and serious manner. He criticized no one in particular and everybody in general. Had it not been for the grin on his face, you might have thought him very angry. However, he was not. He admitted having a gun on his person and declared that it contained seven loads in each chamber.

Well, all's well that ends well Everybody had a fine time, a good laugh and all felt good. Mr. George Wheatley closed the meeting in well chosen words of thanksgiving to God for all good. So ended a very good evening of fine fellowship.

MONESSEN GOES OVER THE TOP IN SALE OF WAR SAVINGS STAMPS--FINAL FIGURES IN

First Car of Shells Leave Greensburg

The first shells from the Railway Industrial Engineering plant at South Greensburg have been started on their deadly mission to kill the Huns. The first car load was shipped to the Gillespie Ammunition Company, New Jersey.

The occasion was celebrated with an informal gathering of the employes and office force and an impromptu speech by Vice President Kerr. The car was christened with a bottle of champagne. The bottle of wine was decorated with red, white and blue ribbon and was furnished by Chief Army Shell Inspector. David E. Walsh.

More than three hundred men are working in the shell department of the plant night and day and a second car load of shells will be shipped this week.

Permitted to Dredge River

Permission has been granted to the Pittsburgh Steel Products company by the United States authorities. to dredge and dump approximately 12,000 cubic yards of material in the Monongahela river, the dredging to be done along the left bank at a point between the borough of Allenport and Stockdale, and the dumping to be done near Dunlevy. This dredging is being done in connection with preparing a harbor and extension of a guide wall at the new plant near Stockdale, just a short distance above Charleroi.

The war activities of the American Sheet and Tin Plate company never cease In every campaign for funds to help Uncle Sam, this industry does its part and comes to the front 100 per cent. perfect. The tabulations for the sale of War Savings Stamps has just been completed with final figures of $47,701 25.

The Pittsburgh Steel company, always ready to give the kaiser a kick, returns total sales of $50,000 This record was made without any great activity and without pressing the issue to any very great extent

The Pittsburgh Steel Products company took the matter up in every department and urged the workmen to purchase the stamps, but kept no mill record, allowing the purchases to be made through the postoffice and the credit go to the town rather than to the mill This same method was used at the Monessen Foundry & Machine company, and the Page Steel & Wire Co., but the workmen in all of the mills did their level best considering the proximity of the drive to that of the Third Liberty Loan.

Postmaster Brantegan announces today that Monessen again went over the top. The quota of the town was $250,000 and the sales to date amount to a little more than $260,000. This not only speaks well for the town but it demonstrates forcibly the effects upon the people of the educational system that has been inaugurated here at the opening of every campaign for funds to aid the government in winning the war

GERMAN ATROCITIES

From the early days of the war, the German troops have perpetrated acts of brutal savagery. One charitable explanation, that they are committed after excesses with drink, does not justify the men who permit these excesses. No doubt there are plenty of Germans who are not cruel and brutal, but these acts are concealed from them. As a whole the Germans have waged war in the most inhumane manner.

The theory of the German rulers has been that other nations must be afraid of them. "Frightfulness" has been their motto. Commit such terrible acts against your foes, that never again will anyone dare to raise his head against the German power, has been their avowed policy.

The long roll of German atrocities is too well verified to permit dispute. Children with hands cut off, soldiers crucified, unoffending civilians lined up against a wall and shot to terrorize a city, these are facts beyond dispute.

The treatment of the women deported from France and Germany will stain the German name for centuries. Forcing prisoners to dig trenches under fire, has been an act of cruelty contrary to all laws of war.

If there is any justice in the world, these acts will be fully punished. If our world is founded on righteousness, if we want goodness and mercy rewarded, and cruelty punished, the Germans must get what is coming to them. A nation can not be allowed to act like wild beats. It must be taught that the world can not be ruled by brute force. The only way to teach that lesson is by a smashing military defeat.

THE SPITTING NUISANCE

It is not just a pleasant subject to discuss. Still we shall never stop this dirty and dangerous habit until we do talk about it and in language so plain that the most ignorant man can grasp the idea.

Expectoration was fomerly considered a kind of inalienable right of the citizen. Many men of a coarser type felt as indignant at being forbidden the right to spit in the public streets, as if they were denied the right to walk there. They thought the objection was all a notion of faddists and cranks. But the doctors knew differently. They told us that there were 100,000 deaths from tuberculosis in this country in a year, and that the germs are largely carried from one person to another by the sputum.

Chicago has had an exceedingly sensible method of dealing with this problem. The police and health departments arranged for a strict enforcement of the anti-spitting ordinance. The spitter would be arrested, taken into court and fined a small amount. Then he would be shown three microscopic views of sputum, one showing tuberculosis, one showing pneumonia and one meingitis germs.

He would then be told how many deaths there were from these diseases in Chicago the past year, and how he was constantly breathing air containing germs that came from the sputum of other people.

If then he wanted other people to stop exposing him to these diseases, he must stop the practice of expectoration himself, and dissuade others from it. This line of talk is said to be effective. It would work very well in Monessen where we still have a few people left ignorant enough to pollute the streets in this way.

ENCOURAGING FRUIT RAISING

For some years agricultural authorities have been urging farmers to plant more fruit orchards of all kinds. Enormous quantities of fruit trees have been put in. Some farmers think the thing has been overdone. They fear that when all these young orchards mature, they will produce more fruit than the country can consume.

The foreign market for our fruit is largely cut off by the war. Fruit is bulky stuff to transport across the ocean. Yet with this decline of export trade, fruit still continues high priced. There has been no over-production so far.

People are substituting fruits for other articles of diet. Many use it for desserts, taking the place of rich puddings, pies and cakes that take wheat flour, sugar and eggs, all of which are scarce and costly. This makes a new demand on the fruit supply, and absorbs any surplus.

Fruit orchards provide a regular harvest with a minimum of labor. The thing that deters many farmers from planting them, is that it takes time for them to mature. People like quick results and hate to put money and effort into a thing that will not bring them a product that very same year. But a growing fruit orchard is always an asset.

The agricultural authorities should make a survey of the probable fruit production at periods five or ten years from now, when young orchards recently set out will come to the full bearing period. Then the farmers could see whether there was any chance of over-production. It seems probable that the young orchards now coming along will do more than take care of the new demand created by increase of population. If this is a correct judgment, the farmer should keep adding to his own and community wealth by planting more fruit trees.

The Proper Care of Children

Things every mother must know if the nation is to meet the health needs of its children as indicated by the draft and still further revealed by the weighing and measuring test are made available today by the Children's Bureau of the U. S. department of labor in its new bulletin on Child Care, prepared by Mrs Max West.

A third of the men examined for military service in the first draft were found to have physical defects which rendered them unfit. Many of these defects might have been overcome if they had been recognized and dealt with in early childhood; the period between two and six is often the time when such defects make their first appearance. "Child Care" has been prepared in the hope that it would enable mothers to understand and recognize symptoms which indicate the need of special care, and also to give mothers the better understanding of the simple laws of hygiene through which it may be possible to prevent the development of such defects at all. It will be especially useful to thousands of mothers who have learned by the weighing and measuring tests of defects and weaknesses in their children which need particular attention.

"Child Care" deals with children from two to six years old It contains simple rules of health and hygiene, including carefully compiled directions about proper food, suitable clothing, suggestions for play and exercise, for discipline and training. It gives simple menus for young children.

THE KEYSTONE

Americans Have it on the Germans

While openly praising the extensive work of the German artillery, American wounded who are being brought to Paris hospitals declare that the German soldier is no equal to the American in hand to hand fighting.

"That's our meat—this open warfare," they say, "and if we haven't got down all the ins and outs of trench warfare, we can fight in the open."

"Traditions of the American army all center about the open warfare of which the German imperial state boasts," sand Reuben Tousley of Cleveland, O., who was wounded by a machinegun bullet through the left kneecap in the fighting around Chateau Thierry, on the Marne front.

"The Hun can talk all he wants to about 'getting in the open,' but he knows now that we Yanks know a thing or two about that game," Tousley declared. My company crossed a wheatfield in order to drive the Germans out of a goods and when we came upon two of their machinegun crews, half of them fled while we accounted for the others when we turned the guns on the runaways

"Two of the machinegun crew who kept up a deadly fire until we were upon them, finally threw up their hands, but I shot 'em both We don't feel like taking that sort of prisoners, who, when they had killed our comrades or wounded them, try to surrender to save their own skins."

Tousley, who says he will soon be back to "get a couple more," averred that wounded Germans were treated humanely, and everything possible, under the circumstances was done for them.

"The German soldier is brave enough when he is in mass formation and he will keep on coming under fire as long as he keeps close to his mates, but he won't tackle one American by himself," said John F McCarthy of Boston. McCarthy was shot through the right hip with a machine gun bullet.

"They are not as good as the Americans at hand to hand combat," he continued "They won't stand up under it But I know Americans will Let us get in the open and 'go through, whether in company formation or not.'

Americans have been taught to beware of Germans who yelled "Kamerad," according to John H. Brewer, of Strawberry Plains, Tenn. Brewer who was shot in the left leg, said that two Germans called out "Kamerad' as he and two companions were dashing towards them in a counter attack The Americans intended to make prisoners of the Germans, but the Huns threw hand grenades at them after shouting.

"The hand grenades went wild—they had no control. You know," Brewer said, "and we ran into them with our bayonets."

A few minutes later Brewer received his wound but kept on fighting until ordered back to the ambulance post.

Come in and see the latest improvements in tires, more miles per dollar than ever.

IF you want tire mileage at the lowest possible cost let us replace each of your tires, as they give out, with a Firestone Cord Tire. We expected a lot from this tire, but it is doing even better than we expected. The extra price is more than offset by extra tire mileage alone, besides the gasoline they save, the added comfort and greater car protection.

Firestone has set a higher standard than ever in fabric tires, too. In developing their cord tire they found ways to improve the fabric line. More rubber between fabric layers, deeper cushion under tread, reinforced bead and other things.

Come in and see the construction. You will then know why we are confident in offering you, in Cord or Fabric Tires—

"No Water No Work" say Women

"No water, no work," was the ultimatum given the officials of the Arnold No 2 plant of the Pittsburgh Coal company by more than burgh coal company by more than one hundred women—the wives and sisters of men employed in the company mines—who marched to the company office with empty buckets The officials, unable to adjust the water shortage, immediately explained that they would try to bring about satisfactory conditions, but it was too late and the 20 miners walked out on a strike

A delegation representing the striking miners appeared at the office of District Attorney John S. Morrow in Uniontown and presented a petition demanding that the coal company be compelled to supply their families with water. District Attorney Morrow explained that the matter was not within his jurisdiction and recommended that the petition be presented to the Public Service Commission.

Good Money in Bouts

It used to be that $1,000 was a lot of money to a prize fighter. Jess Willard is a lucky man. He came along just at the right time. Joe Goss and J.M. Mace, it will be remembered, mauled each other nearly to death for $1,200. Willard bobbed up when everyone wanted to see Jack Johnson deposed. Willard then had nary a jitney but since the bout at Havana, he has cleaned up a half-million showing himself in a circus.

Shortstop is Ordered to Work

Fort Worth, Tex., July 6.—Roger Hornsby, star shortstop of the St. Louis Nationals, was today ordered by local draft board No. 1 to engage in an essential occupation or be placed in Class 1 A of the draft. He is the first Major league player to receive a work or fight notice under the new ruling of Provost Marshal-General Crowder. Hortsby's home is in Fort Worth.

Soldiers Gain in Weight

That the average gain in weight throughout the Army is 9 pounds per soldier, is the message which Maj. John R. Murlin, of the food division of the Surgeon General's Office, Washington, D. C., sends to the mothers and wives. This division is concerning itself with all phrases of the proper feeding of the Army, from the scientific standpoint of nutrition during the "mustering-up" period to the special diets for patients in the hospitals.

With regard to the meat allowance of 1¼ pounds per man in the American Army, which is higher than the allowance of the British, French, and Italian Armies, Maj. Murlin reports:

"Meat stimulates heat production in the body more than any other foodstuff Therefore, it assists in keeping the body warm in cold weather. There is some evidence that for a quick delivery of maximum energy, such as may be necessary in getting 'over the top' a high protein diet is necessary. We certainly desire that the American soldier shall have plenty of 'punch' to his fight. If a high protein diet will insure this punch nobody, I am sure, will begrudge him all the meat he feels like eating.

"Besides the garrison ration," he says, "The American Army has three other rations. The reserve ration consists of hardtack or bread, bacon, sugar, coffee, salt, and pepper. The travel ration contains soft or hard bread, canned corn beef or corn-beef hash, baked beans, canned tomatoes, jam, coffee, evaporated milk, and sugar. The regulations provide for an emergency ration which has been defined as 'a substitute for nothing.' Many attempts have been made to concentrate into a small space the necessary nutrients to maintain a soldier for 24 hours.

Two Women Leave for France

Miss Marie P. Spalding, for several years instructor in Latin in the Canonsburg High school, is making preparations to embark for Europe some time in August, to undertake canteen work under the direction of the Pittsburg district of the Y. M. C. A

Miss Spalding signified her desire to enter this service sometime ago, and has been awaiting orders to sail. She is one of forty woman selected from the Pittsburg area, and probably will be accompanied by Miss May Irwin, daughter of the late Judge Irwin, of Washington, the two woman having enlisted at about the same time.

Joe Uihlein, hunter of polar bears, polar stars, aurora borealises and other wild carniverous harmless mammals, including ducks, swans and welsh rabbits, may be found at sunup and sundown with his trusty pruning knife and safety shears pruning and shearing all his plants and flowers, and Henry Thompson, his neighbor, says: "If Joe would only let nature take its course, the things that intended to come up this spring wouldn't wait until next fall." But Joe says: "I guess I know more about dandelions and pedigrees than Henry does. Why, just look at that statue of the replica of a polar bear I shot on the side of the house; he couldn't shoot a thing that looks like that even if he had a gun," and Henry in one of his dulcet neighborly tones replied: "I wouldn't need a gun to shoot at a thing like that," and disappeared through a slim crack in the fence with his unlighted cigar.—Milwaukee Journal.

Mule Is Doing His Bit.

The Missouri mule is doing his bit, and doing it well, in the present world conflict, just as he did it in the Civil war. In many sections of the front and along the lines of communication are places where mules are almost indispensable and where horses and motorcars are virtually useless.

Pershing's engineers have testified to the worth of the mules in the requisitions they have made to Washington for the animals.
